

The following is a poem that I wrote and published on my blog on August 5, 2020. If you noticed the date, that was during the chaos of the pandemic. A lot of feelings are being felt with no clear answers being offered then, just speculation, and so, I wrote this poem. Though the context is different today, the truth is still the same. I do not know if this is something you need today or not, but whatever the situation, rest assured, that even though you do not know much, God knows. And God knows you. He knows what you need. Therefore, it is okay to say, "I do not know".

I do not know about today.
I do not know about the way.
I do not know about tomorrow.
I do not know how to handle this sorrow.
I do not know what's around the bend.
I do not know why this will not end.
I do not know which way to go.
I do not know,
I do not know.
But You, oh God, know,
and thus it is Your way I will go.
There is much out of my control,
as this year has definitely taken its toll.
Guide me,
Guide me,
and lead along the way.
May Your glory be revealed in me this day.
I do not know,
I do not know,
But thank You, God, it is You that I know.

"But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you. Therefore, do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble."
(Matthew 6:33-34)

Let us pray: Lord, as the saying goes, I do not know what tomorrow holds, but I know WHO holds tomorrow, and that is You. In all my uncertainties may I find peace in the fact that You are sovereign and that Your love for me through Jesus is great. May I not worry about unknowns but rather trust in You, You who knows me. In Jesus' name I pray, Amen.
